

Ross

Geography Teacher

Profile Background

- Male, 30 years old
- Secondary School (Geography) Teacher
- Educates 2 Geography classes with 20 students each
- Welcomes each student who joins the class
- Uses website to search all statistics and data for countries around the world

Goals and Tasks

His task is to ensure each student understands how to use the website and teaches about statistics of different places around the world with the utmost efficiency.

Tasks include:

- Providing information of populations of countries in the world
- Answering all questions with information of Capital Cities of each country
- Teaching the names of different languages of different countries

Needs and Expectations

- Needs admin controls of the website to what information can be provided to his students (staff login)
- User friendly website with quick access to statistics to specific information that he wants to teach.

Frustrations and Concerns

- Difficult to provide certain information on different populations at a time for his work that he gives to his student
- Having special permissions can have some trouble when providing information to students as he does not have complete control
- Some unnecessary information may confuse his students and hide key pieces of information

Scenario

Ross prepares for his class with questions about different countries and country languages. He has discovered a website that Geography teachers can use to access information to different countries/continents with statistics to each one. He implements the website into his teachings, finding that it is much more understanding towards the students who use the website as their work significantly improves.

There is a staff/admin login that Ross can use to hide and show certain parts of information to create tasks for his students to research more about different countries as well as population statistics. Ross has been enthusiastic when using the website as it provides a simpler way to teach and give access to information his GCSE students can use.

Overall, the website has been a great addition to his geography teaching as it saves time and gives an easy way to teach his students
